A Day of Alarm and Excitement.

GRAVE FEAR OF TROUBLE

A MONSTER MASS MEETING

The Militia Holding Itself in Readiness—The Coxyites Jeer the Deputy Marshals but That is the Extent of Their Offending—More Communications Over the Wire With Mr. Kendrick—Governor Rickards Arrives—Sharp Resolutions—The Army Starts at 2 O'clock This Morning.

BUTTE, April 23.—The city of Butte seemed today to be on the verge of a volcano. A crisis was at hand, and that the day passed without bloodshed seemed almost a miracle. Had the heads of the leaders on both sides been less cool a riot would have been precipitated that would have ended until many lives had been lost.

Morning broke wet and dismal on the Coxy army. The rain, which fell without ceasing during the night, compelled about a hundred members of the army to take refuge in the roundhouse and sandhouse of the Northern Pacific. This morning, however, they wended their way back to camp, and when the roll was called the 30 captains each reported the 12 men in their respective companies present. Rations were served to each company and the men had what they called a "mulligan," which consisted of the scraps left over from the former meals. After breakfast the orders of the day were issued by General Hogan. The men were given permission to go to the city, or anywhere they pleased, but were ordered to be back at 1 o'clock in the afternoon for drill.

Rumors were around during the early morning that four companies of the regular colored troops at Fort Missoula had been sent for and would be on hand on the morning train. The morning train arrived on hand and no troops were on board. Three freight cabooses were attached to the train at the depot and these were loaded with deputy marshals and deputy sheriffs. The train then moved to the transfer where is located the "coxy camp." There was no interference on the part of the army. Some were washing dishes, some sleeping, others talking, and the only attention that was paid to the Northern Pacific passenger train was to hurl a volley of abuse at the deputies. They were called "scoundrels," and "blood-suckers." No attempt was made to capture the army, and the men declare that no attempt was made to capture the train yesterday.

A crisis was reached at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Orders had been received to take out a Northern Pacific train of box cars at that time, several hundred men gathered at the Northern Pacific and Great Northern depots. The militia had been ordered out and remained all the afternoon under arms at their armory ready to move on call. The deputies, more than 100 strong, had remained at the transfer where is located the "coxy camp." The train was to leave at 2 o'clock to accompany the train out, but the order to start the train was annulled, and it was announced that no freight would be taken out today.

The deputies were then ordered to fall in line and march to the United States marshal's office in the Owsley block where hundreds of men surrounded them on the march up town and a torrent of abuse was hurled at the army of deputies. They were called every name that could be thought of, and the march to the Owsley block was a trying experience. Excitement was at fever heat. There was never an election in Butte where passions were so thoroughly aroused. This was not alone on account of sympathy for Coxy's army. There was a belief among the men that an attempt was to be made to take out a Great Northern train, and sympathizers of the strikers were shouting and shouting. The deputies returned no answer to the abuse, no stones were thrown and no attempt at violence was made on either side. The men reached the Owsley block and went up to the marshal's office. None but deputies were allowed in there.

While for an hour a crowd of several hundred men stood in Park street in front of the Owsley block and gave vent to their feelings. Every time a deputy's head appeared at a window there was a yell of derision. The Northern Pacific came in for a share of abuse. In the crowd were very few men who wore the red, white and blue ribbon of the Coxy army. After an hour the crowd dispersed without doing any damage.

During the day a big express wagon went to the markets and grocery stores to obtain provisions for the army, the stock on hand being nearly exhausted. On the wagon was a banner inscribed as follows:

RICHES MINING CAMP

ON EARTH.

100 MEN IN NEED.

PROVISIONS SOLICITED.

This afternoon the following notice was served on the mayor, each of the aldermen and the city clerk:

To the Honorable City Council of the City of Butte, Mont.,

GENTLEMEN—You are hereby informed that the so-called Coxy's army under Captain Hogan have taken possession of the yards of the Northern Pacific Railroad company at Butte, Montana, refusing to allow us to move freight trains from that station, and threaten to continue to obstruct the movement of all trains; also threaten to destroy our property. We have called upon your mayor and police for assistance and protection and have been refused such protection as is necessary for the movement of our trains.

You are hereby required to furnish such assistance and protection as shall be necessary from time to time for the preservation of our property and to enable us to prosecute our business.

In the event of your failure so to do, we shall hold the city liable for any damages we may sustain from the so-called Coxy's army.

Dated the 23rd day of April, 1894.

THOMAS F. OAKES,
HENRY C. PAYNE and
HENRY C. ROUSE,

Receivers of the Northern Pacific Railroad company.
By J. D. FINN, Division Superintendent.

A similar notice from Northern Pacific officials was served on the county commissioners.

The following provisions for the army were contributed by business houses: Broad, Eagle bakery; meat, H. Nichols; meat, Granite Street market; three cases crackers, two pieces bacon, sack of salt, sack of flour, John Caplice; shoes, Red Boot; 10 pounds tea, T. F. Courtney; quilts, W. L. Fant & Co.; tobacco, Louis Cohn; bread, Mrs. Sullivan; sack of flour, David Green; one bottle liniment, E. E. Gallagher; clothing, I. Siegel; clothing, Albert Quilbertson & Co.; meat, Schultz; sack of flour, Main street restaurant; meat, Capital Meat market; sack of spuds, Graehl; two sacks of spuds and 100 pounds tobacco, P. J. Brophy.

Most of the army spent the day in quiet in camp until the evening, when a march up town and parade of the streets and held a mass meeting in front of the court house. There were 278 men in line. A meeting of the business men was held at the same time in the city hall to see what could be done to get the army east. The business men offered the Northern Pacific $150 per car to take the army east. The militia was disbanded at 7 o'clock with instructions to assemble at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning. The militia spent the day in the armory, playing cards, chatting and the like. Some of them found army life a little hard with no sandalwood and sugarless coffee for lunch.

A largely attended meeting of representative citizens was held at the council chamber this evening to discuss the situation and try to devise ways and means to get the army started for Washington. Mayor Dugan was chosen chairman and E. S. Root was selected as secretary. The following telegram from General Manager Kendrick of the Northern Pacific in reply to a message sent him this afternoon and signed by a great many business men, was received:

ST. PAUL, April 23,
To Marcus Daly, W. R. Kenyon and others,
Butte, Mont.,

I deeply deplore the present situation at Butte. My position has not been taken for the purpose of exacting compensation for their transportation, but because I am advised that we cannot legally accept them for transportation in the manner proposed, or otherwise than by regular passenger train under the usual conditions. I am entirely ready to accept them, but I must assume all responsibility for damage that may occur to property in the respective communities through which they must pass and must be responsible for $100 per capita for each of the so-called army delivered in St. Paul. I am not prepared to transport an army of about 1,000 men now organized in Seattle, and I am informed will receive reinforcement from other Washington cities, as informed by individual citizens of this and other communities on this line that it will be held that the act of the road in transporting these men in the manner mentioned, and that it will be held responsible for such acts. If these men had been transported into Butte over the road as an organized body I would consider it our duty to remove them, but I am informed they are citizens of Montana and Butte. I have no authority to use the property of this road for the purpose of transporting these men in the manner mentioned. Moreover, I am informed that it is a violation of the national law. The position I have taken in this matter is, by advice of counsel and has been approved by the receivers. I cannot recede from it. If I have made any misstatements with respect to the conditions as they exist I shall be pleased to have them corrected.

J. W. KENDRICK.
The telegram which was sent to Mr. Kendrick this afternoon stated that there is a crowd of idle men here who want to go to Washington and the people want them to get away. The telegram stated: The United States marshal has deputized a number of men to prevent the Coxyites from taking a train by force, but he is entirely helpless, as the sympathy of the people is all with the Coxyites. At the present moment the deputy marshals are marching up the street with a crowd howling and jeering after them. What will train of box cars cost to land 500 men in St. Paul.

The telegram was signed by all of the heavy shippers over the Northern Pacific. The reading of Mr. Kendrick's message was followed by some discussion as to the best way of getting the army out of town. The chairman finally, on motion of John Caplice, appointed the following committee of 10 to confer with Marshal Hogan and try to devise some means of getting the army started: H. L. Frank, John Caplice, A. F. Bray, W. R. Kenyon, W. D. Pinkston, Captain Palmer, John O'Rourke, Charles Lane, J. K. Clark and J. H. Leyson. Mr. Mueller was followed by William Hogan immediately after the meeting adjourned.

The space in front of the court house was black with people this evening in attendance at the Coxy mass-meeting. Henry Mueller, at the request of the Coxy leaders, presided at the meeting. Mr. Mueller said he thought the army had been unfortunate in selecting a chairman, as he did not know that he would be in accord with the sentiments of the meeting. He counseled moderation and urged the men to stay within the law. He said there were several ways to get started on the way to Washington, one of which was to capture a railroad train. [Applause.] Mr. Mueller said the audience might applaud, but he for one was not in favor of it and did not believe in it. Any individual corporation has a right to have its property protected and held sacred.

Mr. Mueller was followed by William Cunningham, the orator of the army, who said that when the army got to Washington they would be able to catch the speaker's eye. He predicted that Montana would be represented next year by two senators from the populist party.

Less than an hour after the meeting adjourned to speak. As Cleveland had once said, it is a condition and not a theory that now confronts the people of the

Kent's Broom Factory Destroyed and John Tripp's Dwelling Damaged.

BUTTE, April 23.—Kent's broom factory, at No. 202 Utah avenue, was completely destroyed by fire about 5 o'clock this morning. It is supposed that the building was set on fire as no one who had any business in the building had been in it since yesterday forenoon. The stock which was valued at about $400, was completely destroyed and the machinery was badly aged. The building, a two story frame structure, was burned to the ground.

The residence of John Tripp, north of the broom factory, was damaged to the extent of about $175 and $150 worth of damage was done to the adjoining building on the south. The total loss will be about $1,100. The fire department did good work but the fire had a big start before they reached the scene.

The alarm resulted in bringing out a good many deputy marshals and others, who had seemingly forgotten the number of taps on the big bell that was to summon them, and there was a good deal of excitement for an hour or so.

IN THE COURTS.

The Case Against Peter Shay Dismissed—
Foe's Trial Postponed.

BUTTE, April 23.—The trial of Peter Shay for shooting at his brother during a family row, with intent to kill, had been set for to-day but when it was called the prosecuting witness did not show up, and the county attorney had the case dismissed and the defendant discharged.

The trial of Charley Foo, a murderous Chinaman, had also been set for to-day, but postponed until May 7.

Several suits of minor importance were disposed of in Judge McElhatton's court, and the certiorari case of T. C. Miles against M. C. Holland, the Walkerville justice of the peace, was set for hearing Saturday.
